DETAILED ACTION

Double Patenting

1. Claims 1-9 are rejected on the ground of nonstatutory obviousness-type double patenting as being unpatentable over claims 1 of U.S. Patent No. 6984241. Although the conflicting claims are not identical, they are not patentably distinct from each other because the structural limitations set forth in claims 1-9 of the instant application are also claimed in the patent, e.g. claims 1-88 of the patent discloses similar limitations, e.g., an elongate tensile member; a first helical anchor; and at least one retaining member (bone anchor). The application claim is merely broader than the patent claim.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

2. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

3. Claims 1 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Cope 5123914.

4. Cope teaches an apparatus comprising: an elongate tensile member; a helical anchor receiving the elongate tensile member; and a bone anchor coupled with the elongate tensile member.

Allowable Subject Matter

5. Claims 10-14 are allowable over the prior art of record.
6. The following is a statement of reasons for the indication of allowable subject matter: the prior art of record fails to teach or render obvious the overall claimed method of repairing a tendon or ligament having fibers extending in a lengthwise direction, comprising: inserting a soft tissue anchor within a tendon or ligament; attaching a bone anchor to a bone; coupling the elongate tensile member to the soft tissue anchor; coupling the elongate tensile member to the bone anchor; and applying tension to the elongate tensile member to approximate the tendon or ligament and the bone.
